TEST STAND FOR MOTOR VEHICLES

FIRST OFFICE ACTION

SPECIFICATION

The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. The Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which the Applicant may become aware of in the specification.

CLAIMS

35 U.S.C. § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 60-66 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Schoeninger (6,739,185).

With regards to claim 60, Schoeninger set forth a test stand for motor vehicles comprising:

a mounting frame which defines a predetermined fixed point, a roller assembly mounted to the frame so as to permit at least slight movement in each of at least two degrees of freedom (col. 1, line 58 to col. 2, line 5), with said roller assembly comprising a rotatable contact surface positioned to support a rolling wheel of a motor vehicle (Fig. 3), and a drive for rotatably driving the contact surface (col. 5, lines 35-38), and sensor means for measuring the force that is operative between the roller assembly and the fixed point (col. 3, lines 17-24) as claimed.

With regards to claim 61, Schoeninger set forth a drive inherently configured to be braked since the removal of power to the drive will brake the drive.

With regard to claims 63 and 64, Schoeninger set forth the two degrees of freedom corresponding to movement in the travel direction and transverse to the travel direction.

With regard to claims 65 and 66, Figure 5 of Schoeninger suggests the claimed subject matter thereof.

35 U.S.C. § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 67-77 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schoeninger (6,739,185) in view of Muller (6,345,237).

With regards to claim 67, Schoeninger fail to teach the roller assembly comprising an endless belt extending about the peripheries of the two rollers as claimed.

However, the admitted prior art of Muller does set forth a roller assembly comprising an endless belt extending about the peripheries of two rollers.

As such, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art armed with said teachings to use such a belt in the teaching of Schoeninger.

The motivation being in order to allow for slippage between the belt and the rollers in order to prevent possible overloading of the drive motor.

With regards to claim 68, Muller sets forth three parallel rollers as claimed.

With regards to claim 69, Muller suggests an opening so that the rollers extend above the level of the floor as claimed (Fig. 2).

With regards to claim 70, Muller sets forth the roller assembly further comprising an arrangement of rollers mounted so as to underlie and support the upper surface of the endless belt as claimed (Fig. 2).

With regards to claim 71, Schoeninger suggest the two parallel rollers including a guide means for absorbing lateral forces as claimed (Fig. 11).

With regard to claims 73 and 74, Muller sets forth a freely rotatable support roller (7) mounted to the mounting frame so as to be positioned under the vehicle wheel.

But Muller fails to teach the roller being behind or in front of the wheel as claimed.

Nonetheless, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art armed with said teaching to position the third roller of Muller in front of or behind the wheel.

The motivation being that regardless of the exact positioning, the third roller would still perform in the exact same function.

With regard to claims 75-77, the teaching combination of Schoeninger in view of Muller clearly suggests the claimed subject matter thereof.
